

Call for Papers

Special Issue - NEW CONFIGURATION OF POWER AND CURRENT CHALLENGES OF DEMOCRACY IN LATIN AMERICA

The Latin American Association of Political Science (ALACIP) and the Latin American Journal of Comparative Politics (RLPC) call interested parties for the presentation of academic articles that will compose the special edition number 15 of the Magazine, around the theme:

NEW CONFIGURATION OF POWER AND CURRENT CHALLENGES OF DEMOCRACY IN LATIN AMERICA

On the publishable articles (will be):

- priority will be given to comparative analyzes of countries in the region;
- they will be evaluated through the blind peer review process;
- the proposed papers must follow the format and editing requirements stipulated by the Latin American Journal of Comparative Politics;
- they may be written in Spanish, Portuguese or English;
- to guarantee the accessibility of the articles in this volume, the(y) accepted paper will be translated into a second language (Spanish, English and Portuguese) and will be freely accessible on the magazine's website.

Contributions (and possible questions) must be sent by email to: info@politicacomparada.com and Inaki.Sagarzazu@ttu.edu

Schedule:

- The deadline for submitting contributions is November 1, 2018
- Volume publication: June 2019
- Presentation of the volume will be in the Xth Congress of Political Science to be held at Technological Institute of Monterrey, Mexico.

Organizing Committee of the special edition:

Sebastián Mantilla (Editor, Latin American Journal of Comparative Politics)

Iñaki Sagarzazu (Editor, CE Alacip)

Ezequiel González Ocanto (CE Alacip)

Rafael Piñeiro (CE-ALACIP)

Ilka Treminio (CE-ALACIP)

Belén Amadeo (CE-ALACIP)

Mariana Llanos (General Secretary, ALACIP)

This special issue will commemorate the X Latin American Congress of Political Science and the beginning of the editorial cooperation of ALACIP with Latin American academic journals.